Dear Laurie,

I just wanted to take a moment to share some thoughts with you. Mark and I are so happy with the staff at Sprouts. I can't tell you enough how comforted we are by the fact that our little one(s) (some days all three☺) are being cared for by such wonderful people. I have never seen or heard of another center who care for the kids as if they were their own. The employees at Spouts are such a tight knit group that it almost feels as if it is family. The fact that the same teachers that taught and cared for Christopher and Ryan are still there caring for Alyssa means the world to us.

I know you are not there all the time, but I wish you could see all the love and support the staff gives not just to the kids but to the parents as well. Jen, Nikki, Ms. Robin, Clarissa, Ms. Linda, and Kim I have especially grown close to and I can't say enough wonderful things about all of them. The other teachers are wonderful too, but I haven't known them quite as long. Ms. Cindy has been really good to Alyssa too so I'm sure in time I'll build a closer relationship with her too.

There are always employees who stand out. You've got an entire staff of gems! All too often we think these thoughts and never take the time to say them. I wanted to make sure I shared this with you because Sprouts has been such a blessing in our life and I thank you and everyone there for that.

It is difficult to leave your child with someone else to care for them because you always want that someone to be you. Knowing they are with such good hearted people makes all the difference in the world. The fact that our kids get excited about coming back to Sprouts when school is closed and STILL talk about their teachers (Ryan adores Nikki and has told his Kindergarten teacher that he misses her so much and Christopher says Ms. Robin is his favorite teacher ever even still) ...I think that says a lot.

So...thank you, thank you, thank you. What better time than Thanksgiving to give Thanks for the special people in our lives.

Love,

The Jordan Family
